

...Constructive protection for wooden floors

Strong surfaces for public or open areas

Lots of people means lots of marks. Because of the constant level of human traffic, wooden floors in public areas are particularly prone to scratches or “scuff marks”. Osmo Polyx®-Oils offer an effective solution, even on heavy traffic floor areas such as those in restaurants, hotels, department stores and offices.

■ Constructive protection

Ensure that you have a sufficiently large barrier mat, which can act as a type of “dirt trap” for damp, sand and dirt picked up on shoes during bad weather.

To protect the floor surface against scratching and pressure marks/dents felt pads should be attached to the legs of tables, chairs and furniture etc (see pic. 18).

Especially for chairs on casters it is recommended that a protective mat be used, this is the only way in which you can protect the valuable wood surface (see pic. 19).

18) Constructive protection with felt pads

19) Constructive protection using a protective mat under chairs with casters

